

Political programme

1 Respect for the principle of Democracy

The MENF and its members have based their political project on adherence to democratic principles and the Charter of Fundamental Rights and they therefore reject any affiliation, past or present, and any connection with or sympathy for any authoritarian or totalitarian project.

2 Sovereignty

The MENF believes in the sovereignty of States and peoples and cooperation between nations. It therefore rejects all policies aiming to create a superstate or any other supranational entity. This opposition to any transfer of national sovereignty to supranational bodies and/or European institutions is one of the fundamental principles that unites the members of the MENF.

3 Identity

The MENF's parties and MEPs have based their political alliance on the principle of preserving the identity of the peoples and nations of Europe and respecting the specific characteristics of those peoples. The right to control and regulate immigration is therefore a fundamental principle shared by all the members of the MENF.

4 Specificity

The members of the MENF recognise everyone's right to defend specific and unique economic, social, cultural and territorial models in Europe. The MENF seeks to preserve the diversity of its members' political projects.

5 Freedoms

The members of the MENF have built their political movement on the defence of individual freedoms and they emphasise the particular importance of protecting freedom of expression, including digital freedom, which is today increasingly under threat.

6 Culture as the foundation of political action

The MENF considers that culture is the very essence of all political action and that only a cultural and scientific education will enable citizens to develop a political consciousness.
